Directed Study Credit Limitations:

A maximum of six (6) credits of 530 Directed Studies, may be credited toward a student's master's degree. A Directed Studies Registration Form must be completed before student can be registered in the course.

Course Letter Designations, (A/B/C/D etc), for 530 courses:

Letter designations are used to distinguish between the Term and number of Credits for each Directed Studies course. The Graduate Programs Manager will determine the Letter Designation and Section Number based on the Credit and Term information submitted on the Directed Studies Registration Form.

FOOD 530 Directed Study

Additional Guidelines exist for Food Science students. Please contact proposed course study instructor for additional information.

Student Responsibility:

Students must provide their signed, completed Directed Study Registration Form with signatures, to the Graduate Programs Manager prior to the deadline for registration changes in the appropriate term. (See UBC's Calendar for registration deadline dates.) All LFS directed studies proposals are reviewed and approved by the Associate Dean, Graduate Programs – Faculty of Land and Food Systems.

Expectations for Directed Study Completion / Grade Reporting:

It is expected that all Directed Studies 530 courses will be completed within the term of registration. However, if a grade has not been reported by the deadline, a "T" standing will be recorded. The "T" standing may be changed once the Course Instructor submits a written record of the grade to the Graduate Programs Manager. For Directed Studies carrying over and into the next session, (i.e. Winter - Summer, or Summer - Winter), students must be re-registered before a grade can be recorded.
